Biggar High School decided to attend Skills Scotland Glasgow to help increase the awareness amongst their students of the opportunities that are out there regarding apprenticeships, employment, further education and training. Skills Scotland Glasgow seemed to cover all these areas and they felt it would be good for pupils to hear these things from employers and other exhibitors rather than from their parents and teachers.

They hoped that their pupils would make positive decisions based on what they saw there, whether this is finding out a little bit more about a particular sector to deciding to leave school to take up an apprenticeship.

“I thought it was excellent. The variety of exhibitors there was very impressive! The event was also very well managed – even though it was packed (good sign really) there was a real sense of order and purpose to it. Congratulations to all those involved.”

“The students really enjoyed Skills Scotland Glasgow and the buzz around the event.”

“I think the long term benefits of attending a Skills Scotland event is awareness of opportunities it raises amongst my students. The linear approach into a particular profession is a thing of the past and I think that message was glaringly obvious from attending Skills Scotland Glasgow.”
