A close-up photograph of a car's center console. The image shows a dark grey or black plastic surface with a prominent wood-grain trim piece running horizontally across the top. Below the trim, there are several control buttons and a lever. The buttons are arranged in a cluster, with some labeled with numbers '1', '2', and '3'. There are also buttons with icons of a hand and a foot, suggesting they are for seat adjustments. A black leather-like lever is positioned to the left of the buttons. The background is dark and out of focus, showing parts of the car's interior.

Adjustments are easier than we think

Disability Inclusion is a moral, social and economic imperative.

We all lose when human potential is squandered.
